

授業科目名 (英文名)	Introductory Macroeconomics (Introductory Macroeconomics)	科目区分 対象学生
単位数	2.0	開講年次・ 学期
担当教員	グエン クォッ フン	所属
オフィス・場所		連絡先
講義目的及び到達目標	This course is designed to introduce basic knowledge of macroeconomics to those who first learn economics. The course starts by familiarizing students with several general major principles of economics and how to measure a nation's income and the cost of living. It then discusses topics related to how the economy works as a whole. In particular, we will study growth of the real economy grows in the long run, short-run economic fluctuations, and the influence of monetary and fiscal policy.
講義内容・授業計画	Lecture 1: Introduction and Guidance Lecture 2: Interdependence and the Gains from Trade Lecture 3: Measuring a Nation's Income: GDP Lecture 4: Measuring the Cost of Living Lecture 5: Production and Growth Lecture 6: Saving and Investment Lecture 7: Unemployment Lecture 8: In-class Midterm Review Lecture 9-11: The Monetary System and Inflation Lecture 12: Aggregate Demand and Supply Lecture 13-15: Monetary and Fiscal Policy
テキスト	Principles of Economics, Gregory Mankiw South-Western Cengage Learning
参考文献	To be specified
成績評価の基準・方法	Class Participation: 20% Exams: 80%
履修上の注意・履修要件	Review lecture notes and do assignments regularly.
実践的教育	Development experiences from Asian economies and examples of US monetary and fiscal policy will be utilized to motivate the class and deepen students' understanding about economic phenomenon in the real world.
備考			